What are our responsibilities and what type of advice do we give?

It is not our policy to provide personal advice. It is our policy to ONLY provide general advice and information regarding financial products and services that can be dealt through us. This information or advice does not take into account your particular objectives, financial situation or needs and because of that you should, before acting on the advice, consider the appropriateness of the advice having regard to your objectives, financial situation and needs.

The only exception that applies to the above is where you have opened a Managed Discretionary Account. In the case of Managed Discretionary Accounts, the advice provided is a function of taking into account one or more of your objectives, financial situation and/or needs. In order to do this, you will be required to answer a number of questions relating to your financial position and risk profile. These questions will form part of the Managed Discretionary Account Application Form. Upon receipt of your completed form Trend may contact you to further assess your suitability to open a Managed Discretionary Account.

Any material changes in your circumstances must be disclosed to Trend as they occur so that Trend may assess whether the Investment Program included in your MDA Contract continues to be suitable for you.

It should be noted that clients who open a Non-discretionary account will also be requested to provide some information relating to their financial circumstances and risk profile. This information is collected so that Trend can receive some reassurance that you will be able to finance any trading that you enter into and that your attitude to risk is comparable to that of the financial products you intend to trade.

What is a MDA Service?

A MDA service is a managed investment scheme and a facility for making a financial investment that has the following key features:

- client's give to the MDA Operator i.e. Trend, access to money or money's worth (client contributions);
- Trend has the discretion to invest in financial products using client contributions without prior reference to the client for each transaction;
- each client agrees with Trend that assets derived directly or indirectly from that client's contributions are managed as a discrete portfolio belonging to the client; and
- each client has an understanding that they will derive benefits from the MDA service, including benefits from Trend's expertise in investment selection and other services offered as part of the MDA service.

Pursuant to an ASIC Class Order [CO 04/194], MDA Operators, such as Trend, have been granted relief, subject to a number of conditions, from the Managed Investment Scheme legislation contained in Chapter 5C of the Corporations Act and the product disclosure provisions in Chapter 6D and in Part 7.9 of the Corporations Act. This FSG complies with the conditions set out in the ASIC Class Order.

What is the MDA Contract?

In order to provide you with MDA services you need to open an MDA. To open an MDA you must enter into an "MDA Contract" with Trend before the MDA service can be provided.

The MDA Contract will include an Investment Program that is prepared in accordance with the requirements in Division 3 of Part 7.7 of the Corporations Act and the Investment Program will contain the following information:

- the nature and scope of the discretions Trend will be authorised and required to exercise under the MDA Contract and any investment strategy that is to be applied in exercising those discretions;
- any significant risks associated with the MDA Contract;
- the basis on which Trend considers the MDA Contract to be suitable for the client; and
- warnings about the MDA Contract, such as:
 - it may cease to be suitable for the client if the client's relevant circumstances change; and
 - it may not be suitable for the client if the client has provided Trend with limited or inaccurate personal information about the client's relevant circumstances.

Who holds the legal title to your portfolio of assets?

The client opens an MDA in their own name and thus, holds the legal title to the portfolio of assets. The MDA service provided by Trend does not include custodial or depository services.

Your funds and assets will be held with the Execution and Clearing Broker in either a Clients' Segregated Account or a Trust Account. The Execution and Clearing Broker nominated by Trend provides dealing services to the Client, which includes execution and clearing services and holding client funds.

Risk Disclosure

There are significant risks associated with an investment via an MDA, of which not all can be outlined. Investment via the MDA may not be suitable for all investors. There can be no assurance that the MDA will achieve its investment objectives. Each prospective investor should carefully review the MDA Contract and carefully consider the risks before deciding to invest. Accordingly, in evaluating the merits and suitability of an investment in the MDA, careful consideration should be given by prospective investors to the following risk factors. This section does not purport to be an exhaustive list of the risks involved in investing in the MDA.

- General Economic Conditions and Market Risks – The MDA's operating and financial performance may be influenced by a variety of general domestic and international economic factors and business conditions which are outside the control of the MDA Operator and the MDA Manager. These include changes in the inflation rate, commodities prices, exchange rates, interest rates, the government and government fiscal, monetary and regulatory policy, natural disaster and acts of terrorism.
- Risk associated with selling options – When trading options, the buyer of the option has the right to decide whether or not or not to exercise the option contract and at times when the options contract is exercised. Therefore, in a rising market the seller of a call option may be obligated to sell the underlying financial product at less than the current market value whilst in a falling market the seller of a put option may be obligated to buy the underlying financial product at more than the current market value.

- Industry Risk – There are a number of industry risk factors that may affect the future operational performance of the MDA. These factors are outside the control of the MDA Operator and the MDA Manager. Such factors include increased regulatory and compliance costs and variations in legislation and government policies generally.
- Financial Market Volatility – A fall in global or Australian financial markets or the rapid change in the value of the Australian dollar against other major currencies may discourage investors from investing in financial markets. This may have a negative effect or a positive result on the price of the financial products in the MDA, however these factors are taken into account when taking a trade.
- Leverage Risk – Where possible by law, your MDA may be operated based on a notional value, i.e. leverage is being used, either through various financial instruments or borrowing capital, to increase the size of your MDA. If leverage is used to make an investment and the market moves against your position, your loss is much greater than it would have been if the investment had not been leveraged. In general, leverage magnifies both gains and losses.
- Liquidity Risk – The MDA may invest in markets that are volatile and which may become illiquid. Accordingly, it may be impossible (in the event of trading halts) or expensive for Trend to liquidate positions against which the market is moving. Alternatively, it may not be possible in certain circumstances for a position to be initiated or liquidated promptly (in the event of insufficient trading activity in the relevant financial product).
- Exchange Rate Risk – Investment in a MDA must be converted to Australian Dollars. Accordingly, investors other than Australian nationals should be aware that exchange rate fluctuations could cause the value of the investment to diminish or increase. In addition, the price of any financial products traded on international markets and, therefore, the potential profit and loss therein, may be affected by any variance in the foreign exchange rate between the time the order is placed and the time it is liquidated, offset or exercised.
- Diversification – the MDA may be less diversified than portfolios operated by other investment managers, as the MDA is likely to be concentrated in a limited number of financial products, to maximize the investment strategy. The fundamental and technical performance of a financial product and its associated factors are taken into consideration when trading and investing.
- Performance of Other Asset Classes – Good performance (or anticipated performance) of other asset classes can encourage individuals to divert money away from financial markets. This may have a negative impact on the price of the financial product. At times, measures are taken to insure the financial product by buying insurance in the form of put options.
- Margins and Financial Products – The Client could sustain a total loss of initial margin funds that the Client deposits with the Execution and Clearing Broker to establish or maintain a position in the derivatives or foreign exchange market. If the derivatives or foreign exchange market moves against the Client's position, the Client may be required, at short notice, to deposit with the Execution and Clearing Broker additional margin funds in order to maintain the Client's position. Those additional funds may be substantial. If the Client fails to provide those additional funds within the required time the Client's position may be liquidated at a loss and in that event the Client will be liable for any shortfall in its account resulting from that failure.
- Size of MDA – The size of the MDA will determine the allowed diversity and risk profile of the MDA. Effective risk management depends on a range of factors, including insurance of these positions with put or call options and other factors, including a defined and successful Investment Program.
- The MDA Operator and MDA Manager – The profitability of the MDA is dependent on the MDA Operator's and MDA Manager's successful implementation of the investment strategy set out in the Investment Program. There can be no guarantee that the investment strategy will be realised.
- Licensing Requirements – The ability of Trend and the MDA Manager to continue to manage the MDA in accordance with this MDA Contract and the Corporations Act, is dependent on Trend maintaining its AFS Licence. Maintenance of its AFS Licence depends, among other things, on Trend, its Representatives, its Authorised Representatives and the MDA Manager continuing to comply with its licence conditions and the Corporations Act.
- Tax Considerations for Investors – There may be tax implications arising from the receipt of profit from the MDA. Applicants should carefully consider these tax implications and obtain advice from an accountant or other professional tax adviser in relation to the application of tax legislation.
- No guarantee can be given in respect of the future earnings of the MDA or the capital appreciation of the client's investments. The price of investments that the MDA Manager has purchased in the MDA can fall as well as rise over time. Further, no assurance can be given that the strategies employed by the MDA Operator or the MDA Manager in the past to achieve attractive returns will continue to be successful, or that the return will be similar to that achieved in the past.
- Trend makes no representation as to any return that investors will earn via the MDA and there can be no assurance that the target performance information, set out in the Investment Program, will be in any respect indicative of how the MDA will perform (either in terms of profitability or low correlation with other investments) in the future.
- Despite achieving the track record attached or outlined as a schedule to the MDA contract or on Trend's website, the said track record is un-audited and not representative of any one client's account.
- The performance of the MDA will be affected by charges relating to the investments. Typically, high portfolio turnover may result in correspondingly high transaction costs and the exact amount of brokerage and related transaction costs that will be incurred will depend upon a number of factors, including the nature and frequency of the market opportunities presented, the size of transactions and the transaction rates in effect from time-to-time. Refer to information in the Disclosure of Fees and Commissions outlined in the Statement of Advice – Investment Program.
- The placing of contingent orders (such as a "stop-loss" order) may not always limit the Client's losses to the amount the Client may want. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders.
- Trend may employ certain strategies that depend upon the reliability and accuracy of the analytical investment processes. To the extent such investment processes (or the assumptions underlying them) do not prove to be correct, Trend may not perform as anticipated, which could result in losses.
- Identification and exploitation of the investment objective to be pursued by Trend involves a high degree of uncertainty. No assurance can be given that Trend will be able to locate suitable investment opportunities in which to deploy all of the allocated assets.
- Trend may, on varying occasions, use "bulk ordering". There is risk that the volume of orders may significantly increase the likelihood of "split fills". Accordingly some accounts will receive prices that are more favourable/ detrimental (whatever the case may be) in comparison to other accounts.

- As MDA investing is not carried out on a “pooled” basis, but rather is separated as discrete portfolios, individual account balances and portfolio valuations may vary substantially in comparison to other MDAs.
- Inaccurate and incomplete relevant personal information provided by the Client may result in investments in financial products that are not suitable to the Client’s needs.
